

Tourist attractions in Guangzhou China

Tuesday, 18 December 2007

Tourist attractions such as the Baiyun Mountain, Conghua Hot spring, Lotus Hill and Liuxi River National Park make Guangzhou a popular travel destination. Many parks such as Dongshan Lake Park, Tianhe Park, Yuexiu Park, Orchid Garden and Yuntai Garden offer tranquil surroundings. Guangzhou also boasts of other tourist attractions such as the Dongfang Amusement Park, Flying Dragon world, Xiangjijiang Safari World and Space Flight Spectacle. With its rich historical past, Guangzhou offers many historical sites too. Take an evening cruise along the Pearl River and enjoy Guangzhou at night. On the banks, you will find many new buildings housing banks, hotels and commercial establishments. You can shop in Shangxia Jiu Lu, Beijing Lu and Di Shi Fu Lu

Tourist attractions in Guangzhou China

Tourist attractions such as the Baiyun Mountain, Conghua Hot spring, Lotus Hill and Liuxi River National Park make Guangzhou a popular travel destination. Many parks such as Dongshan Lake Park, Tianhe Park, Yuexiu Park, Orchid Garden and Yuntai Garden offer tranquil surroundings. Guangzhou also boasts of other tourist attractions such as the Dongfang Amusement Park, Flying Dragon world, Xiangjijiang Safari World and Space Flight Spectacle. With its rich historical past, Guangzhou offers many historical sites too. Take an evening cruise along the Pearl River and enjoy Guangzhou at night. On the banks, you will find many new buildings housing banks, hotels and commercial establishments. You can shop in Shangxia Jiu Lu, Beijing Lu and Di Shi Fu Lu

Sun Yat-sen Memorial Hall: This magnificent structure was built to commemorate the work of Sun Yat-sen. This octagonal building rich with Chinese symbolic construction and color is home to large meetings and performances.

Ancestral temple of Chen family: The ancestral shrine is housed in a rectangular building that is designed and decorated in traditional Guangdong style, replete with brick carving, pottery carving, brass and cast iron workmanship and wood carving. Today it functions as the Guangdong Folk Craftwork museum.

Yuexiu Park: Named after the Yuexiu Mountain, this park has 7 hummocks and 3 artificial lakes. With freshly blooming flowers and thriving bamboos, this place is popular with tourists coming to Guangzhou. The spring flower and chrysanthemum exhibitions are a sight to behold. Visitors to Yuexiu Park can catch the azaleas in late spring, yulan magnolias in April, and the kapok in early spring. You can catch pavilions built in elaborate Linann-style of architecture as well as towers and corridors. Do not miss the Zhanhai Tower and Ancient City Wall of the Ming Dynasty.

Temple of Six Banyan Trees: This spot has been an ancient monastery and temple complex. Built originally during the reign of Emperor Wu of the Southern Liang Dynasty, this place offers tourists a rich collection of cultural relics. The pagoda in the temple is known as Six Banyan Pagoda or Flowery Pagoda. Visitors will find the Laughing Buddha as they enter the Tianwang Hall.

Baiyun Mountain: Also known as the White Cloud Mountain, tourists to Guangzhou will marvel at the natural beauty of this mountain range from where one can get a scenic view of the entire city. This is a popular summer resort with scenic spots such as the Mingzhu Tower, Moxing Ridge, Baiyun cableway, Mingchun Valley and Luhu Lake. The summit is often bathed with clouds. Tourists can enjoy slideways and bungee jumping here.

Guangzhou Zoo: Another attraction in Guangzhou is its zoo, famous for the largest overland ocean exhibition house and the country's largest butterfly ecology garden. You can catch the panda, golden monkey, elk, black-necked crane and the South Chinese tiger. The Ocean World is part of the Guangzhou Zoo and offers many submarine wonders – Fresh Water World, Sea Turtle Pool, Shark Hall, Ocean Theater and Seaweed Pillar.

Space Flight Spectacle: A visit to the SFS promises to take you into the realms of the mysterious universe with a simulated space flight. Experience the rocket launching process at the Rocket Launch Command and Control Center here.

Bright Filial Piety Temple: This temple is ancient and is home to many antiques. The mushroom-shaped Grief Bell boasts of vivid embossments depicting various aspects of Buddhism. The stately Grand Hall, washing bowl spring, iron tower and stone bell represent aspects of Buddhist culture and the history of Guangzhou.

Han Nanyue King Tomb Museum: Built on an ancient tomb along a steep slope of a mountain, the Han Nanyue King Tomb Museum is home to a fine collection of jades, porcelain pillows and other antiques.